ANNUAL REPORT

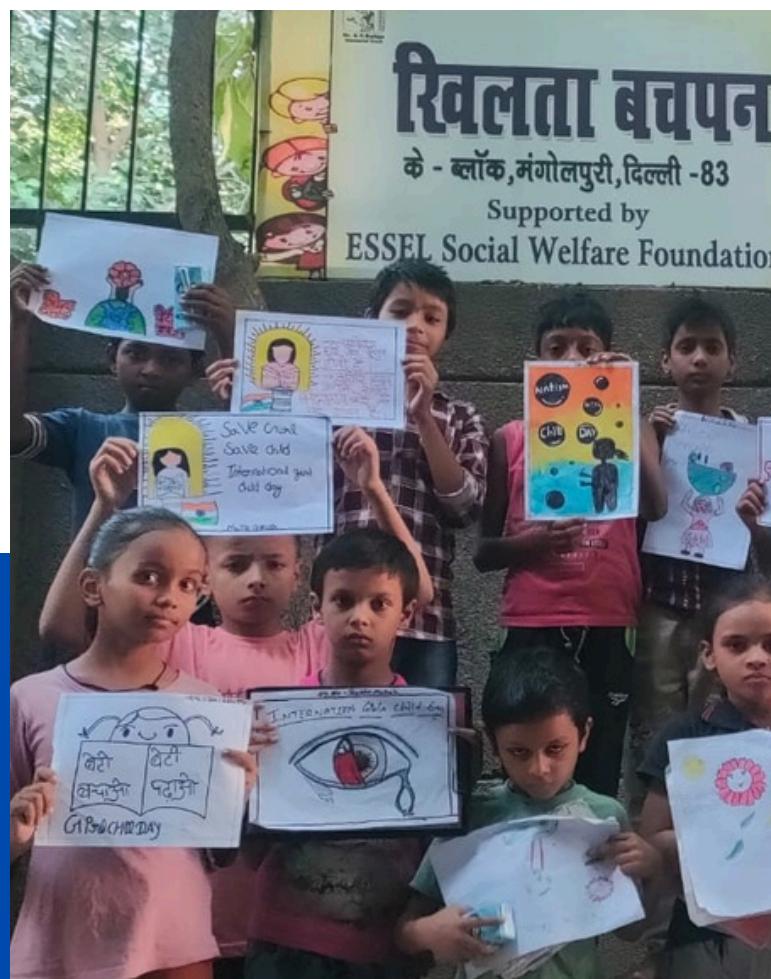

2024-25

DR. A.V BALIGA MEMORIAL TRUST

Dr. A. V. Baliga Memorial Trust, founded by Ms. Aruna Asaf Ali (Bharat Ratna) and Mrs. Ranjana Ray, is a non-profit organisation operating in the slums and resettlement colonies of the National Capital Territory of Delhi. For over five decades, it has been implementing a wide range of developmental activities, including education, women's empowerment, livelihood promotion, child rights and protection, and health and sanitation. Since 1968, the Trust has emerged as a multidisciplinary organisation focusing on marginalized and disadvantaged people from socio-economically weaker sections of society, especially children, youth, and women, for their socio-economic rehabilitation. After relentless efforts spanning more than four decades for the betterment of less-privileged communities, the Trust has accelerated its developmental initiatives to reach the maximum number of unreached and underserved people, while remaining committed to the values and standards set by the organisation.

Accountability, transparency, and commitment form an integral part of the Trust's development process. In its indomitable style, Baliga Trust has performed, achieved, and contributed to the creation of a peaceful, just, and inclusive society through its work in the sphere of development and liberation.

Over the years, the organisation has pursued a multifaceted approach, with key strategies focusing on advocacy, awareness generation, capacity building, networking, fostering linkages, and effective service delivery.

Our Vision

To endeavour to bring about a secular, nationally integrated, and egalitarian society by empowering the disadvantaged through education, awareness, and employment opportunities, and to break down barriers of negativity in religion, caste, and gender.

Our Mission

To break down barriers of negativity in religion, caste, and gender; to promote education for all and the universalization of elementary education; to ensure child rights; to foster a secular society in both learning and living environments; to create more employment through focused awareness programs; and to empower women.

APPROACHES

The organisation's interventions reflect a balanced blend of rights-based and needs-based approaches, underscoring its resolute commitment to making a meaningful difference in society.

MAJOR THRUST AREAS

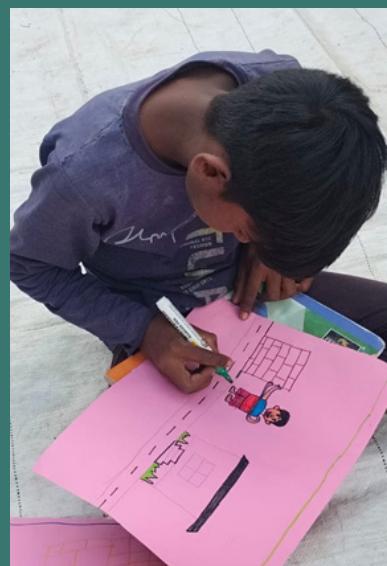

The organisation's major thrust areas encompass education, child rights, women's empowerment, financial inclusion, Mahila Panchayat, livelihood and skill development, health, water, environment and sanitation, family counselling and legal literacy, along with the promotion of art and craft.

GEOGRAPHICAL EXPANSION

The Trust, headquartered in Delhi, maintains a strong presence across six states (Bihar, Jharkhand, Odisha, Delhi, Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh) driving meaningful change at the grassroots.

Baliga Trust also hosts the National Secretariat of the Campaign Against Child Labour (CACL), a network spanning 18 state chapters nationwide.

A YEAR OF COLLECTIVE CHANGE

During 2024–25, Dr. A. V. Baliga Memorial Trust expanded its reach and deepened its impact across Delhi, Bihar, Jharkhand, Odisha, and Rajasthan, working with children, youth, women, and marginalized communities. Spanning education, child protection, women's empowerment, youth skilling, health, and advocacy, the Trust's initiatives reflect a holistic approach towards creating resilient and inclusive communities.

Through education-focused programmes, over 30,000 children were identified, enrolled, or retained in schools, while remedial and learning centres ensured that children at risk of labour or dropout received continued support. Parallelly, child rights clubs, health cooperatives, and multi-activity centres not only safeguarded education but also promoted health, nutrition, and child protection awareness.

The Trust's work on child labour and protection brought systemic impact—hundreds of children were withdrawn from work, thousands sensitized through campaigns like Shram Nahi Shiksha, and local protection systems were strengthened through Mahila Panchayats, Child Protection Committees, and grassroots youth groups.

In the area of women's empowerment, more than 11,000 women accessed affordable sanitary napkins through a women-led social enterprise, while Mahila Panchayats facilitated over 5,000 cases, provided legal aid, and linked women to social welfare schemes. Women also led awareness drives, health camps, and skill initiatives, reinforcing their role as catalysts of community change.

Youth empowerment and livelihoods emerged as another strong pillar—through SMART Centres, UNNATI, vocational training, and youth-led advocacy clubs, nearly 900 youth were trained, with more than 400 placed in dignified employment across retail, digital marketing, customer service, and creative industries. Youth also led campaigns on environment, gender equality, and governance, proving themselves as central actors in social transformation.

Across all interventions, the Trust maintained its focus on rights and dignity—connecting families to welfare schemes, facilitating pensions and entitlements, promoting environmental sustainability, and advocating for systemic change at district, state, and national levels.

The year's work reaffirms Baliga Trust's commitment to its vision: a society where every child is protected, every woman empowered, every youth skilled and engaged, and every community strengthened through rights, participation, and opportunity.

EDUCATION & CHILD RIGHTS

Enrolling and retaining out-of-school girls in Katihar, Bihar

In the rural blocks of Katihar, Bihar, many girls remain excluded from formal schooling due to poverty, household responsibilities, and entrenched social norms. For families living on daily wages, education is often seen as a luxury rather than a necessity. Against this backdrop, the Maitri Project, supported by Educate Girls, has been working to identify out-of-school girls, enrol them in school, and ensure they continue their education.

Thirteen-year-old Nurjahan from Dighaliya village had never attended school. As the eldest of seven siblings, she spent her days caring for her brothers and sisters while her parents worked as daily labourers. Education seemed beyond reach.

Through persistent outreach and careful trust-building with her family, our team encouraged them to allow Nurjahan to enrol. Today, she not only attends school for the first time but does so with confidence, walking alongside her younger sister. Her story is a powerful reminder that when communities come together, even the most excluded children can reclaim their right to education.

Moments that Made the Change

This initiative not only brings girls into classrooms but also inspires boys, parents, and local leaders to embrace education as a shared responsibility — ensuring that no girl is left behind.

In resettlement colonies of North Delhi, children from underprivileged families often struggle with learning gaps, irregular attendance, and the constant risk of dropping out. Many are pushed into domestic or wage labour, missing out on their right to education. To address this, Baliga Trust established 10 Educational Learning Centres with the support of the Bani Jagtiani Trust, offering remedial education, community engagement, and awareness on child rights.

Project Snapshot

- 10 learning centres operational in Holambi Kalan & Narela.
- 500 children reached directly, with improved learning outcomes.

Today, her mother has committed to sending all her children to school regularly. to education.

Ending the Worst Forms of Child Labour in Mica Mining

Supported by TDH Germany and BMZ

Bihar and Jharkhand

Bihar and Jharkhand are among the largest mica-producing regions in the world. For decades, children from impoverished families have been engaged in hazardous mica mining, facing severe health risks, exploitation, and denial of education. Families, dependent on mica for survival, often lack alternative livelihood options, while weak protection systems make children more vulnerable to exploitation. Addressing this issue requires a multi-pronged approach that not only prevents child labour but also strengthens education, livelihoods, and advocacy efforts at community, state, and national levels.

Project Snapshot

The project is being implemented across 60 villages in four districts of Bihar and Jharkhand, directly reaching 2,400 working children and 700 families dependent on mica mining. It aims to build resilience in communities, reduce dependency on child labour, and create enabling environments for children's education and protection. The project adopts a rights-based approach, emphasizing children's participation in decision-making processes and strengthening institutional mechanisms to combat child labour. Impact Story

In the villages of Baladheda, Ulhahedi, and Hajipur, children from the Child Health Cooperative (CHC) identified eight malnourished children in their community. They immediately reported these cases to the anganwadi centres, after which the children began receiving supplementary rations and nutritional support. This initiative demonstrates how children themselves have emerged as active agents of change, ensuring the right to survival and nutrition for their peers.

The strength of a village lies in its youth — when they unite, they turn challenges into opportunities.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST CHILD LABOUR

CAMPAIGN AGAINST CHILD LABOUR NATIONAL SECRETARIAT

The Campaign Against Child Labour (CACL) is a national-level network of organizations and individuals committed to the eradication of child labour in India. Established in 1992, the year India ratified the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC), CACL has emerged as a leading advocacy platform addressing child labour and child rights issues.

Over the years, CACL has played a key role in research, policy analysis, and advocacy, identifying critical gaps in government approaches. To strengthen local action, the network has established state chapters and today functions actively across 18 states with over 6,000 members. The Dr. A. V. Baliga Memorial Trust serves as the National Secretariat of CACL, providing national-level coordination and leadership.

With more than three decades of sustained action, CACL continues to evolve its strategies through periodic review of its Plan of Action (POA), strengthening collective efforts towards its vision of a child labour-free India.

The following initiatives were carried out by the National Secretariat between January and June 2025.

Submission of Joint Demands to Parliamentarians

The National Secretariat of CACL successfully submitted Joint Demands to Parliamentarians, urging the complete eradication of child labour and the provision of compulsory, quality education up to 18 years. This marked a major milestone in national-level policy advocacy. CACL further strengthened its collaborations with key platforms such as FORCES and the ECD Alliance, reinforcing its position as a leading child rights advocacy network.

National Coordination Committee (NCC) Meetings

Between January and May 2025, four online National Coordination Committee (NCC) meetings were conducted with strong participation from state chapters, ensuring regular updates and collective decision-making. In addition, four virtual NCC meetings and one physical NCC meeting were held up to June 2025, bringing together state convenors and youth representatives to strengthen on-ground coordination and strategic planning.

Capacity Building on Inter-State Rescue Operations

On 7th March 2025, the National Secretariat organized a capacity-building session focused on inter-state cooperation for the rescue and rehabilitation of children in the textile sector. The session featured key insights from NCC member Mr. Nambi Chelliah, strengthening operational understanding across states.

Expansion to the North East

Efforts to expand CACL's reach were initiated through a visit by the National Convenor to the North East to explore new partnerships and collaborations. Currently, CACL remains active across 18 states, with a network of over 6,000 CSOs, INGOs, and individuals.

Decentralised Planning and Educo Support

CACL continued to uphold democratic decision-making through inclusive NCC discussions, where major initiatives such as the 44-day national campaign and the National Consultation were collectively shaped. The National Secretariat also mobilized support from Educo for both the national chapter and the Odisha CACL chapter, with responsibility entrusted to raise key child labour concerns at the policy level.

Odisha Vision Building Workshop

A State-level Vision Building Workshop was conducted in Odisha, bringing together representatives from 30 districts, including current and former leadership. The workshop resulted in the development of a six-month strategic roadmap for the state chapter.

State Core Committee Engagements

The National Secretariat actively participated in core committee meetings across Bihar, Jharkhand, Odisha, and Tamil Nadu, facilitating information sharing, consensus building, and coordinated planning for upcoming state-level campaigns and activities.

State and Regional Consultations

Two state-level consultations were organized in Bihar and one in Jharkhand to strengthen state chapters and promote convergence. Additionally, a large-scale regional consultation in Bihar reached over 5,000 people, mobilising collective action toward a child labour-free state. In Jharkhand, three regional consultations engaged over 175 stakeholders.

National Youth Congress on SDGs 4 & 8

The National Secretariat successfully organized the National Youth Congress on SDGs 4 and 8 in Ranchi, Jharkhand, engaging youth from 12 states in dialogue on education and decent work.

44-Day National Campaign

The Secretariat led the planning and implementation of the 44-day national campaign, conducted both online and offline across 19 states, reaching nearly 3 lakh people. Campaign facilitation was actively supported in Jharkhand, Bihar, and Odisha. A strong pool of national experts was built to strengthen inter-network collaboration. Youth played a central role in planning and execution, driving innovative and impactful outreach.

Physical NCC Meeting – June 2025

The National Coordination Committee (NCC) convened a physical meeting on 11th June 2025 at the Indian Social Institute, Delhi, with participation from 45 members, including state convenors, youth leaders, and National Secretariat representatives. The meeting reviewed national strategy, state-wise progress (Jan–June 2025), and youth-led actions under the Shram Nahi Shiksha campaign.

Youth Leadership & Policy Advocacy

Youth representatives highlighted innovative state actions and placed strong demands on equity in education, climate justice, and deeper grassroots engagement. A special session on Child Safeguarding led to the decision to formulate a dedicated Child Safeguarding Policy through consultations with youth and children, with a draft targeted for December 2025.

Way Forward

The NCC meeting reaffirmed CACL's commitment to youth leadership, participatory governance, and evidence-based advocacy, setting a clear strategic roadmap for the remainder of the year.
